2008 UNITED STATES YOUNG AVIATION ARTIST CONTEST ANNOUNCED FOR AMERICA'S YOUTH

WASHINGTON, DC – The Brewer Trophy Aviation Education Association (BTAEA) today announced the 2008 United States Young Aviation Artist Contest, in partnership with the American Society of Aviation Artists (ASAA).

The announcement was made jointly by Frank G. Brewer, III, President of the Brewer Trophy Aviation Education Association, and Kristin Hill, President of the American Society of Aviation Artists.

In the joint announcement Kristin Hill said “on behalf of the American Society of Aviation Artists (ASAA), I am pleased to state our enthusiasm for this new partnership with the Brewer Trophy Aviation Education Association (BTAEA) as cosponsors of the 2008 UNITED STATES YOUNG AVIATION ARTIST CONTEST. This opportunity allows ASAA members to work with the Brewer Trophy Aviation Education Association members and friends to support aviation and art in the lives and imaginations of young people and the people they influence.” Frank Brewer, III said, “We are delighted to have the American Society of Aviation Artists as our partner in this important aviation education endeavor. The ASAA represent the world’s finest experts in aviation art – and will serve as judges for the 2008 United States Young Aviation Artist Contest. This competition will allow Young Aviation Artists in the 50 states and U.S. Territories the chance to express their spirit of aviation adventure and artistic creativity. Young Aviation Artists will design their very own Aviation Stamp celebrating the aviation experience.”
